A LETTER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

This August, The Disney Channel is proud to offer the second annual Disney's Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra concert. So impressed were we with last year's program that we've increased the size of the orchestra: This year, 75 young musicians from around the country, all aged 12 or under, will perform in a concert of classical music, along with special guest Henry Mancini. Hosting the performance, as he did last year, is Dudley Moore, a talented musician in his own right.

Auditions for Disney's Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra were held in Houston, Chicago, New York, and Los Angeles. Over 600 candidates attended the auditions, musicians from every walk of life and from diverse musical backgrounds. (One young horn player from Colorado was driven to the Houston auditions by her mother, who had interrupted work on the family cattle drive.) Narrowing the field to 75 musicians was truly a Herculean task.

In July, the orchestra gathers for a 10-day music camp at Los Angeles' Mount Saint Mary's College, where they not only rehearse for their concert but also participate in workshops with some of the best-known musicians in the world. The camp culminates with a concert at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena, which will be telecast on The Disney Channel on August 26. (The program is produced by Smith-Hemion Productions in association with the Young Musicians Foundation and with assistance from the Yamaha Corporation of America, which provides many of the musical instruments for the camp and the concert.)

Disney's Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra continues The Disney Channel's—and The Walt Disney Company's—commitment to producing television that seeks to enlighten and educate, as well as to entertain. By nurturing young musical talent and by introducing the musical experience to our young subscribers, we honor the powerful role music plays in shaping lives. I think you'll find our second annual Disney's Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra concert a moving and entertaining television event.

Draft Days Ahead THE MIGHTY DUCKS

This January, Southern California acquired its eighth professional sports team when The Walt Disney Company announced its formation of an NHL hockey franchise, The Mighty Ducks of Anaheim. In the months since, Jack Ferreira, formerly of the Minnesota North Stars and the San Jose Sharks, has been named the team's General Manager. And important days are ahead: June is the month for the National Hockey League's important Expansion Draft, which draws on players from teams around the league, as well as its regular draft of young players. Ferreira and his assistant general manager Pierre Gauthier are hard at work marking down their choices for The Mighty Ducks, whose inaugural campaign comes next hockey season, which will begin in October of this year.

The New Day Care MORE CAMP, MORE SERVICES

In the last two decades day care has changed.

It's now more like camp than group babysitting, and the concept has grown to include a range of enrichment opportunities for children and even some special services for parents. What once was small-scale is now a $15 billion industry, with an estimated 12 million households now requiring child care.

The biggest trend, says Kimberly Moore, vice president, education, for Children's World Learning Centers, based in Golden, Colorado, is toward more innovation to make child care an enhancement to the whole family's lifestyle. "We offer a much wider variety of services now than we did a few years ago," she says.

As families have integrated day care into their lifestyles, a growing number of parents seek childcare services while on vacation. Some providers offer services as part of a larger, full-time operation that is mostly geared to working families, but which also includes such options for vacationers.

For example, Montgomery, Alabama-based KinderCare operates 1,200 centers in 40 states and offers vacation drop-in care on a space-available basis, and sitters, too, says Becky Gober, KinderCare's marketing communications manager. At Walt Disney World in Lake Buena Vista, Florida, KinderCare provides child care for guests staying in 36 different hotels. Not only will sitters provide in-room child care, they also will look after the elderly and children with special needs, and they will assist with convention group's children's parties.

Day care centers are also looking to meet the needs of a growing number of elementary-age children who need supervision after school. KinderCare is talking with kids in this age group and finding that they consistently want certain basic features in after-school care: access to computers, sports, VCRs, and a quiet place to think and work. Most elementary-school children also prefer going to a program in a building that is separate from a day care center—an annex—and more and more child care centers are creating such settings to meet these children's preferences, says Gober.

Child care centers are also discovering that they can become the hub for a wide range of other services that families need, from dry cleaning pick-up to package mailing services—all available at the same spot where families drop off and pick up their children.

KinderCare has developed a program it calls "Helping America's Busiest Families," designed from recent surveys that asked parents what types of services they would like to see available at day care centers to make their lives easier. Now many centers offer ballet, karate and gymnastics classes—typically tough extras for working parents to fit into their long days. "How often do you have ballet lessons available at seven o'clock at night when a parent gets home? We offer these extras so these children can have a chance to participate," says Gober. Some centers also offer hair cuts for the children, and even sell postage stamps and frozen dinners—at cost.

Moore predicts that the day care center will increasingly be seen as a source of almost one-stop support for the entire family. "We're becoming something the family depends on not just for child care but for everyday services and support."

family grilling. "It's a miraculous process to take a piece of flank steak and marinate it for a few hours, grill it, and the whole thing is transformed," he says. What's interesting and exciting, too, he adds, is that children see and taste the change.

While Ingle agrees that the fire and hot coals used in grilling make the actual cooking a less-than-ideal activity for kids, he argues that the kitchen preparation is a perfect opportunity to help children learn to cook. He often works with his own seven-year-old son, Ferrell, to put marinades together. "Children can start learning there are certain herbs, spices, oils, and vinegars that go with certain parts of the world. They learn to use a knife and slice an onion and peel garlic," he says.

Ingle admits that cooking

GRILLED FLANK STEAK

Schuyler Ingle offers one of his favorite recipes for family-friendly backyard (or great outdoors) grilling:

2-pound flank steak

1/4 cup salad oil

1/4 cup soy sauce

3 tablespoons red wine vinegar

2 tablespoons brown sugar

1-inch piece of fresh ginger, sliced

2 cloves garlic, sliced

1 teaspoon sesame oil

1/2 teaspoon red pepper flakes

1 teaspoon toasted sesame seeds

1/4 cup chopped green onion

Combine ingredients and marinate flank steak for 1-2 hours. Cook on the grill, 5-10 minutes on each side. Slice across the grain. Serves 4.

with children demands some modifications in the kitchen. "You've got to throw out your sense of time and your sense of what is and isn't a mess," he suggests. Ingle recommends that parents work within the children's sense of play, and take the time to let them have the freedom to experiment and learn.

Shades for Summer WHAT DO KIDS NEED?

From dime store party favors to high-end, high-style shades, the options for children's sunglasses are wide-ranging. Kids tend to love glasses—at least for a moment or two—but how can parents tell what is actually necessary to protect their children's eyes from the sun's damaging ultraviolet rays?

Any sunglasses that screen out 400 nanometer (nm) rays block out the vast majority of damage, says Todd Turriff, director of programs and information services at the National Society to Prevent Blindness. Children's Sunglasses should also meet the U.S. government requirements for impact resistant lenses in eyeglasses. These features should be clearly labeled on the sunglass label, tag or package, he says.

The cost of sunglasses is not necessarily the best guide in choosing good protection, Turriff says. "Just spending $50 for glasses is not enough. Some $10 sunglasses are actually better."

Turriff suggests that parents check to make sure that the lenses are optically correct and don't distort light. He recommends parents hold the glasses away from their own eyes and make sure that a good horizontal or vertical line—like the edge of a building or a roof—is straight. "This is a more common problem with kids' eyewear," he says.

Sunglasses that shade brightness but don't block the ultraviolet (UV) rays can cause more harm than good, Turriff says. Tinting allows the eyes to dilate, which increases the amount of light exposure to the eye. If the right UV screening is not there, the eyes can actually be exposed to more UV rays from ineffective sunglasses than they would be from no glasses at all.

For children who don't like to wear sunglasses—and many don't—Turriff suggests parents select a brimmed hat, which can reduce the amount of UV exposure by 50 percent and cut the overall brightness, too.

When children are in very bright spaces—such as high

BEST BETS FOR EYEWEAR

There are lots of choices for kids' shades. The pink plastic pair, in the right foreground, ($2.25) offers no specifics on the percentage of UV light it filters. The soft sunglasses (pink, yellow) by MerriShades ($9.00 each) are designed for children ages 6-36 months, and promise to filter out more than 95 percent of UV rays. Good for You:

AVOIDING SUN SCREAM

While some exposure to the sun's ultraviolet light is necessary for the body to produce vitamin D, too much time in the sunshine can cause sunburn, premature aging and skin wrinkling, and an increased risk of skin cancer. The best bet—for children and parents alike—is prevention.

According to Sidney Hurvitz, M.D., clinical professor of pediatrics and dermatology at the Yale University School of Medicine, anyone out in the sun for more than 20 or 30 minutes needs sunscreen. Most lotions work by absorbing ultraviolet rays and are rated with a sun protection factor (SPF): the higher the factor, the greater the protection.

Hurvitz says a sunscreen with a protection factor of 15 is adequate unless the skin is extremely fair or the sun intense. He advises application of the sunscreen 30 minutes before going outside, in order to give the lotion time to penetrate the skin. The lotion should be reapplied every three hours, he says, and more often—even if the sunscreen is labeled waterproof—when swimming.

Despite your diligent efforts at protecting the skin, sunburn still sometimes happens, and it can make wearing clothes and sleeping at night a challenge. Sunburn is actually the result of damage to the outer layer of skin cells and the small blood vessels beneath the skin. Several days after the burn, the dead skin cells peel away, often causing itching.

Experts recommend applying calamine lotion or a sunburn cream to the area—and keeping out of the sun until the skin has healed.

Generations of Cat Chow® Care brand CAT FOOD begin with...

Cat Chow Care. For the life of your cat.

Call 1-800-CAT-CARE for more information.

Acetaminophen (Tylenol) can also help relieve tenderness.

Beyond preventing sunburn, sunscreens help block skin cancer, which is increasing at a rate of six to ten percent annually, says Hurvitz. There are more than 700,000 cases of skin cancer every year in this country. Hurvitz urges parents not to forget themselves as they pull out the sunscreen and carefully cover their children with the protective lotion. "Adults do a lot of things for their kids and not for themselves," he says. "Parents shouldn't forget they need sunscreen just as much as do their children."

Together: FIRST-TIME CAMPING

To parents who haven't been camping since they were in Scouts, the idea of taking a family out in the woods can be daunting. It's actually workable—and fun—if you bring the right equipment and follow some basic advice.

DeWayne Johnson, editor of Camping Today, recommends that families interested in trying camping start out by talking with a local outfitter store and selecting some reliable basics. If it's tent camping parents are after, much of the equipment can be rented, and this can be a cost-effective way to test not just the gear but the camping itself. For those more interested in motor home or recreational vehicle travel, local yellow pages advertise the names and numbers of firms that rent such equipment, Johnson says. In both cases, the trip is bound to go better, says Johnson, if seasoned camping friends can be cajoled into coming along for on-the-spot advice and support.

Before venturing out, Johnson suggests parents first try out the equipment at home in the backyard. Set up the tent. Drive the motor home around town. Try the gas light. It's far better to struggle with equipment when home—and parts and guidance are still a phone call away.

For the first trip out, Johnson suggests families start with a weekend excursion, ideally within 100 miles of home. Families can pick from a wide range of

BRINGABLE TOYS

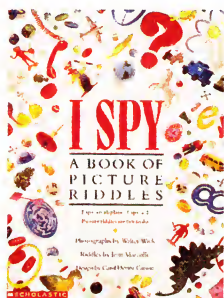

Whether a trip is just an hour long or a long series of days of driving, children need something exciting to do to entertain them. Here's a toy, a tape and a book that are sure to engage and delight those who are not destined to be in the driver's (or pilot's) seat:

Magna Doodle - Designed for children three and up, it's a no-ink, no-paper drawing system.

campgrounds—from rustic state parks to private camps with horseback riding and swimming pools. Campground directories, which are available in bookstores, provide detailed information on the facilities available.

Johnson says that part of the fun of camping is the work of establishing a spot, setting up, getting comfortable, and cooking. "Kids interact differently with their parents when there are things to do, tasks to perform."

Even if everything doesn't go perfectly smoothly on the first—or subsequent—trip out, that's not necessarily bad. "One of the important things children learn by getting away from home and into the semi-wilderness is how to deal with the unexpected," Johnson says.

Camping also gives families a chance to connect with nature—sometimes a challenge for parents who may be used to going from parking garage to parking garage as they commute from

A SIMPLE FIRST AID KIT

Summer travel—whether it involves car trips around town or a long cross-country journey—requires the back-up of a basic first aid kit. It doesn't have to be fancy; in fact, all of the things you need can fit into a small size lunch box. Be sure to include:

- 1 small lunch box (as the container)
- 1 small package of tissues
- 1 small scissors
- 1 whistle
- 4 small bandaids
- 1 washcloth
- 1 roll of 1-inch wide adhesive tape
- Foil or "space" blanket

- Aspirin or aspirin substitute
- Roll of sterile cotton
- Elastic bandages
- Round-ended tweezers
- Antiseptic cream and antiseptic wipes
- Safety pins
- Hydrogen peroxide
- Syrup of ipecac

GRILLING DESSERTS

Whether camping or in the backyard, children have long loved grilling marshmallows over hot coals and putting them together with other fixings for an easy and fun dessert. Here are two versions of the favorite, one the time-tested one, and the other, a new (and more health-oriented) variation:

OLD FASHIONED S'MORES

Grill marshmallows on long skewers over a hot fire. When browned, add to a square of chocolate, sandwich between two graham crackers...and eat.

GRILLED FRUIT WITH CHOCOLATE

Grill sliced, firm pieces of pineapple, apple, nectarines or peaches on long skewers over a hot fire. When browned, dip in chocolate sauce...and enjoy.

In Production FROM COUNTRY TO ROCK & POP

On June 4 in Nashville, Tennessee, Tricia Yearwood, country music's hottest new female vocalist, begins production on her world premiere special for The Disney Channel. The show is currently scheduled to premiere this fall on Sunday Night Showcase, and it features not only Yearwood's previous hits but songs from her upcoming album as well. It's part of Sunday Night Showcase's dedication to presenting the finest contemporary artists.

Yearwood isn't the only star busy working on Disney Channel specials. Mick Fleetwood is putting the finishing touches to his program, Fleetwood Mac: Going Home, another world premiere on Sunday Night Showcase, scheduled for August. The show includes never before seen concert and studio footage, as well as reminiscences from the group's members.

And lovers of classic pop should note that coming later this year is a unique special that will stand as the definitive musical biography of Bing Crosby. (A commemorative boxed album set of Crosby's classic songs is also scheduled to be released at the same time.)

Comedy Specials GENIUS AT WORK

Dan Aykroyd discusses their pioneering work on Saturday Night Live and introduces The Blues Brothers, a world premiere special in September that features Aykroyd and John Belushi's great TV skits...Scheduled for the fall is a two-part retrospective on those comic geniuses, the Marx Brothers. The special includes scenes from the never before seen pilot to Groucho's classic TV series You Bet Your Life... And November brings the sequel to our earlier comedy special Martin & Lewis: Their Golden Age of Comedy. This new two-part program takes an indepth look at the film careers of Martin and Lewis, both as a comedy team, and as solo film stars.

The Mickey Mouse Club

A NEW SEASON—AND AN ALBUM—COMING UP FROM THE CLUB

The Mickey Mouse Club has gathered at The Disney-MGM Studios where they are hard at work on a new season of shows that will debut in September. One of the first things the Club turned their attention to down in Florida was the recording of an album entitled MMC, which will be released on September 14 by Walt Disney Records. After wrapping up their new shows in Florida, the Club will hit the road and go on tour. And fans of the MMC can catch the Club's hot music videos from the album on the Mickey Mouse Club, plus they'll be airing on The Disney Channel at other times, too. And beginning in the next issue of The Disney Channel Magazine, we'll be keeping you up to date about the MMC with a new column.

Plus, if you'd like to take a sneak peek at one of the MMC's soon-to-be-a-hit album tracks, just send $1 for postage and handling to: MMC Sneak Peek Single, P.O. Box 954, Santa Clarita, California 91355.

Relive the Romance... "TARA...SCARLETT'S PRIDE"

It was the pride and passion of beautiful Scarlett O'Hara...her beloved Tara, the gracious plantation home where she grew up — and which she fought with all her heart to save. The grand setting for the most popular movie of all time: Gone With the Wind.

Now the film's classic opening scene is recreated as "Tara...Scarlett's Pride," premier issue in the Gone With the Wind collection of architectural sculptures designed by award-winning artists Kenneth and Hope LeVan.

A Remarkable Value with Outstanding Potential

Measuring just 3 3/4 inches high, this fascinating work of art is entirely hand-painted in 21 colors...including the graceful figurine of Scarlett O'Hara, Tara's beautiful belle.

The low $39.90 issue price of "Tara...Scarlett's Pride" is a remarkable value for hand-crafted sculpture of this quality...especially when you consider how exceptional Gone With the Wind collectibles have performed.

The 1978 collector's plate "Scarlett" has increased by 970%* over issue price. And exceptional "cottage" sculptures are also strong performers. Not all collectibles go up in value; some go down.

But with its hand-numbered Certificate of Authenticity and descriptive literature, "Tara...Scarlett's Pride" shows outstanding heirloom potential.

*In the new miniseries
"Heidi," glamorous
Jane Seymour plays a cold-hearted spinster
—Fraulein Rottenmeier*

By David Callaway

Jane Seymour's ROLE REVERSAL

She has ranged widely in her roles, from a James Bond Girl to Queen Marie Antoinette—and to a frontier doctor on her present hit TV series Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman. But the glamorous Jane Seymour as Fraulein Rottenmeier?

Fraulein Rottenmeier, of course, is the cold-hearted governess in Johanna Spyri's classic novel Heidi, now a four-hour original Disney Channel miniseries that receives its world television premiere on July 18. A rigid spinster constantly wringing her hands, Fraulien Rottenmeier brings out the cod liver oil whenever her charge Klara yawns, threatens to throw Heidi in the cellar, and considers kittens the most dreadful things in the world. Does this sound like a role for the woman best known for playing romantic leads? "No," moans Jane Seymour. But she did have her reasons for accepting the part.

First of all, Seymour loves the book: "Heidi is simply a wonderful story," she says. And then there was the lure of a working summer with her family in Austria's majestic Tyrolean Alps, where Heidi was to be filmed. Finally, there was her children's reaction to seeing Seymour so out of character, playing such a prim, proper—even neurotic—role. "My kids thought that was really hilarious."

Austria, it turned out, was indeed wonderful, "almost a vacation." There were boat rides and visits to castles and Seymour got the chance to do some painting in the mountains. As for her character of Fraulein Rottenmeier, Seymour sees her as a tragic figure rather than an evil one. "She's madly in love with Herr Sesemann [her employer and the father of Heidi's friend Klara], and she believes the more efficient she is, the more indispensable she will become to that household—and that Herr Sesemann will finally realize who he needs..." In hindsight, however, Seymour worries that playing the perfect governess on the set might have driven her to loosen just up a little too much on her parental authority after hours.

Seymour's children, Katie and Sean, teamed up with Noley Thornton, who plays Heidi, and Lexi Randall, who plays the bedridden Klara, and "they all just had a ball," Seymour says. The kids had sleep-overs, and midnight feasts, and enjoyed "a rich fantasy life." One night they fashioned a rope out of hotel property to make a daring escape. Seymour laughs ecstatically: "Yes, things were being thrown out the window... towels and sheets seemed to be leaving the hotel..." She adds hastily, "Oh, they were all retrieved, of course." Sheets, towels. And kids.

Seymour has the highest praise for Noley Thornton and Lexi Randall as actors. Her own children don't aspire to follow her career path, but they have appeared on camera with her. Daughter Katie was only three when she sang a French song in the miniseries War and Remembrance, and when Jane played Marie Antoinette, Katie and Sean were the royal children. Sean in fact bore an uncanny resemblance to the Dauphin and took great delight in dressing up as a girl to flee the palace. "In real life," Seymour says, Katie, 11, would like to be a vet and a soccer player. Sean, seven, loves karate, baseball and computers, and aims to be a comedian. Seymour is also close to her stepdaughter Jennifer, 12, who wants to be an actress and doctor. (She has a fine role model!) All of the children ramble around the mountainous set where Seymour now puts in long hours as Dr. Quinn.

Meanwhile home is in Santa Barbara with a host of pets that Seymour's Heidi character of Fraulein Rottenmeier would vigorously disapprove of: two dogs, a cat, —

"we had a duck but the coyotes got it"—a cockatiel, two rats (!?), and two rabbits "that we had to give away because the children just couldn't care for them."

Seymour herself was born and grew up in England. Her father was a physician, and at an early age she was watching him perform in the operating room. At school Seymour admits she didn't thrive until sent to dance academy at age 13. Then she was so elated to be spending half the time dancing that her scholarly work improved dramatically.

Somewhere in Seymour's history there lurks an obvious question in regards to

Heidi, a question to which the answer is, Yes. For the character of Fraulein Rottenmeier, Seymour drew on several crabby teachers from her own past, in particular a school headmistress whom Seymour is not afraid to name and with whom she now claims to be very friendly. The atmosphere at the school was Victorian and very strict. Conduct and behavior were monitored at all times through a system of demerits, and the young ladies had to curtsy, curtsy, curtsy. "I could run upstairs and curtsy both at the same time," Seymour recalls with a laugh. "Heidi never had to do that!"

Jason Robards Returns to The Disney Channel

Jason Robards, who created a memorable Mark Twain in the 1991 Disney Channel Premiere Film Mark Twain and Me, returns to The Disney Channel in the four-hour miniseries Heidi. In the miniseries, Robards plays the crucial role of Heidi's reclusive and tormented grandfather. And it's a role he's familiar with: Robards recalls playing the role of Heidi's grandfather once before, when he was but a young actor still earning a name for himself in the acting biz. Robards "put on his old man's voice," he says, and dubbed in the voice of the grandfather for a Swiss version of the film. Little did Robards know that 40 years later he would actually play the role on screen.

Robards is an actor's actor, one some critics have declared the American equivalent to such British masters as the late Sir Laurence Olivier. Since 1956, he has earned a reputation as the foremost interpreter of the work of America's Nobel Prize-winning playwright Eugene O'Neill. His stage work has resulted in six Tony Award nominations, and he has appeared in over 40 films, winning two Oscars for Best Supporting Actor back-to-back, for For All The President's Men in 1976 and for Julia in 1977. Robards' work in television ranges from miniseries to narrating a number of notable television specials, and he also has garnered an Emmy Award.

It's fitting that Robard's career has led him to a high place among the acting profession. While filming the miniseries in Austria's Tyrolean Alps, which tower 10,000 feet above sea level, Robards took oxygen along just as a precaution. To his surprise, however, he never cracked the tank's cylinder. "After a couple of weeks I felt better than ever," Robards laughs.

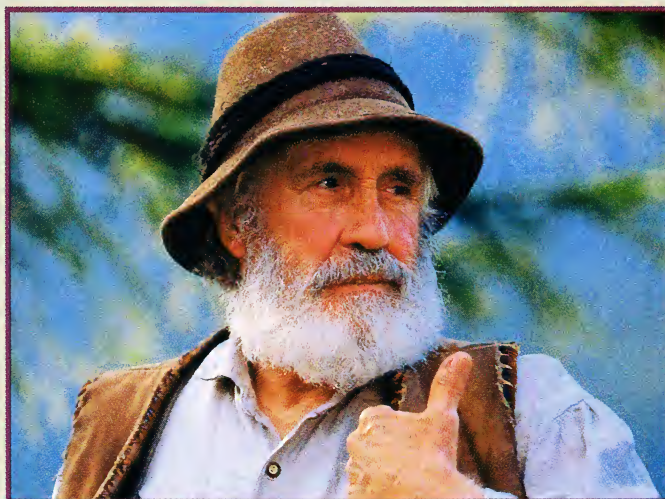

"I cleared out. Then I came back to sea level, and I wanted oxygen."

In addition to the awesome landscape, Robards says that what made Heidi an experience unique to others in his career was the special friendship that he developed with Noley Thornton, his 10-year-old co-star who plays Heidi. Then there was the depth of the miniseries' script, which he relied on entirely while creating and shaping the complex and mercurial character of Heidi's suffering grandfather.

"Who you're acting with and the quality of the script always make a tremendous difference in the work," Robards says, "and that was the big difference here. I just had a wonderful experience."

Exclusive! The "Sgt. Pepper: The 25th Anniversary" plate... a Bradford Exchange recommendation

It was twenty-five years ago when Sgt. Pepper's Band began to play, producing what many at the time considered The Beatles' masterpiece album, though more were to follow. And the album's packaging was as intriguing and colorful as the music itself.

That famous Beatles' album cover has been faithfully replicated by artist Diane Sivavec and re-created on a porcelain limited edition collector's plate. And, like exceptional collector's plates that command hundreds of dollars on the plate market, "Sgt. Pepper: The 25th Anniversary" appears to have what it takes to go up in value once the edition closes.

Some exceptional plates appreciate in value; some plates go down, and many remain at or near issue price. But this edition is strictly limited to a maximum of 150 firing days, and demand is expected to be strong. So, if you wish to obtain this plate at the $27.75 issue price, act now. To order your plate—backed by our unconditional 365-day guarantee—send no money now, simply complete and mail the coupon.

GLENN FREY

Filmed live at the National Stadium in Dublin, Glenn Frey: Strange Weather is a concert that follows the former Eagle as he soars from the present to the past and back again

By Mr. Bonzai

ngelic harmonies, powerhouse rhythms, and towering horns breathe fiery life into the romance and rock that Glenn Frey is so well known for. And in this special, we're also treated to a course in the art of song-writing, with Frey himself bringing new life to the words that have been carved so deeply into our collective consciousness.

"This Disney Channel special represents 20 years of my musical life," Frey confides. "We do everything from 'Take It Easy'—which would have been the first time anybody really heard me sing—all the way through 'Strange Weather.'"

A major success as a solo artist since the early '80s, Frey was a founding member of the Eagles, who in the course of their career made four #1 albums, earned four Grammy Awards, and filled concert halls all over the world. In this modern look at Glenn Frey we relive such unforgettable classics as "Peaceful Easy Feeling," "Lyin' Eyes," and "New Kid in Town." We also get a good look at Frey's solo hits: "Smuggler's Blues," "Long Hot Summer," "The Heat is On," "Love in the 21st Century," and the title track from his most recent album, "Strange Weather."

It's moving to see Frey in action. In addition to jewels composed with Jackson Browne and fellow-Eagle Don Henley, a number of Frey's hits were co-written with a little known songwriter named Jack Tempchin. "I first met Jack in 1969, when he was the opening act for me and J. D. Souther," Frey recalls. "In 1972, when we were putting the Eagles together, he sent me a song called 'Peaceful Easy Feeling.' So when it came time to write with someone other than Henley, Jack was my first choice. The first time we sat down, we wrote 'The One You Love,' followed by 'I Found Somebody.' Like Henley, Jack is very strong lyrically. He's very good with the storyline of songs."

Onstage, Frey introduces "Strange Weather" as a song "in the key of metaphysical distress." The title track from both his album and this Disney Channel special is conceived in translucent layers. "It's meant to be interpreted in a few different ways," Frey says. "Oddly enough, it's really a love song talking about the climate in a relationship. But it can also refer to the political climate around the globe, with so many places undergoing facelifts and experiencing historical change."

It's fitting that Glenn Frey's well-crafted songs continue to reach new audiences. "I think good music spans the generations," Frey says. "My motto has always been 'surround yourself with talent,' and I've been fortunate enough to have written some songs and made some records with some very talented people. I think songwriting is the reason why I am still around—'cause every once in a while I can write a good tune."

Programs for the Adults in the Family...Because Kids Go to Bed

"Mommy I'm Sleepy"

Timeless appeal,
expert craftsmanship,
only $59⁹⁵

Timmy has been quietly playing in his toy-filled room since dinner. As his eyes become heavy with sleep, he decides he better go find Mommy. He pitter-patters down the steps, finds her in her favorite chair, then says in his most concerned voice, "M-o-m-m-y, I'm sleepy."

"Mommy, I'm Sleepy" by artist Kathy Barry-Hippensteel, is the first issue in I Want My Mommy — a heartwarming collection of porcelain dolls that portray the early relationship between toddlers and their "Mommies."

Timmy's head, arms, and legs are cast of fine bisque porcelain. With heavy, hand-set blue eyes, and his thumb near his mouth, Timmy's realistic pose will evoke your love. His rosy cheeks and puckered mouth are carefully hand-painted to capture the flushed look of a tired toddler. His expertly sculpted fingers can be posed so one hand holds his blanket while the other hand "tugs" at his ear.

Recommended by the Ashton-Drake Galleries, "Mommy, I'm Sleepy" is certified Premiere Grade — your assurance of superior artistry and craftsmanship. As an heirloom-quality doll with exceptional credentials, he may be a wise investment as well.

Bring home this endearing little boy and tuck him into bed for only $59.95. But hurry... "Mommy, I'm Sleepy" is issued in an exclusive, hand-numbered edition ending forever in 1993, after which molds for this doll will be broken and no more porcelain will ever be cast. Order today.

The Troll Maiden

by Chris Hopkins

An officially authorized edition of the Norfin® Trolls based on an original design by Thomas Dam

Far, far away, in a magical land, little creatures with elfin looks, pudgy noses and expressive eyes live and play, spreading happiness wherever they go. Come enter the enchanted land of the lovable Trolls! And, meet one of the kingdom's most enchanting creatures . . . The Troll Maiden. She and her trusted friend, the Unicorn, meander down to the pond on this sunny day, gathering flowers, bringing peace and good fortune to one and all.

"The Troll Maiden" is the premiere issue in The Enchanted Norfin Trolls Plate Collection and represents the first-ever plate featuring the adorable Norfin Trolls. Created by acclaimed artist Chris Hopkins, each issue will be limited to a total of 75 firing days, hand-numbered and accompanied by a matching Certificate of Authenticity. As the owner of "The Troll Maiden," you will have the right—but not the obligation—to preview future issues in the collection.

But hurry, for the Troll Maiden and her Unicorn will soon return to the castle, and who knows when we might see them again.

Kodak Sets The Stage For Disneyland® Magic.

Here's how to get your DISNEYLAND Plush Puppets, as Kodak celebrates the opening of Mickey's Toontown.

Just collect 10 purchase points from Kodak products for each puppet you order. Cut out the section with the "Proof of Purchase U.S.A." symbol (not UPC) from one or more of the Kodak products listed. No copies will be accepted.

Qualifying Kodak products	No. of Proofs	X	Points Earned	= Total Pts.
Kodak Gold Plus, Ektar, Ektachrome, or Kodachrome film*	_____	X	1	= _____ (A)
Kodak video tape	_____	X	1	= _____ (B)
Kodak batteries (per package)	_____	X	1	= _____ (C)
Kodak Fun Saver 35 cameras (Fun Saver 35, Fun Saver 35 w/flash, panoramic 35, Weekend 35, telefoto 35)	_____	X	2	= _____ (D)
Kodak 110 cameras (Ektalite and Cameo)	_____	X	4	= _____ (E)
Kodak 35 mm cameras (Star and Cameo)	_____	X	10	= _____ (F)

*Proofs from multi-packs count as one proof per roll of film in the multi-pack; for example, one proof from a 3-pack counts as three "Proof of Purchase U.S.A." symbols.

Total Points Submitted:

Buy Kodak products and get your choice of four Mickey's Toontown plush puppets by Mattel® for just $3.50 each.

Each puppet is shipped in a box that unfolds into a sturdy, colorful Mickey's Toontown puppet stage.

Select Your Puppets

Enclose a check (no cash) for $3.50 for each Mickey's Toontown plush puppet you order:

	Quantity	Total
Mickey Mouse	_____ X $3.50 = _____
Minnie Mouse	_____ X $3.50 = _____

© Gerard Samozza/OUTLINE

ON JULY 25—THE NIGHT BEFORE MICK JAGGER TURNS 50—SUNDAY NIGHT SHOWCASE PRESENTS THE U.S. TELEVISION PREMIERE OF THE ROLLING STONES: A MUSICAL HISTORY. PRODUCED BY LORNE MICHAELS ("SATURDAY NIGHT LIVE") AND ANDREW SOLT, THE SPECIAL, CREATED DURING THE STONES' "STEEL WHEELS" TOUR, WEAVES TOGETHER VINTAGE FOOTAGE (INCLUDING THE STONES' FIRST TELEVISION APPEARANCES ON "THE ED SULLIVAN SHOW") WITH NEVER BEFORE SEEN EXCERPTS FROM "ROCK AND ROLL CIRCUS" AND "GIMME SHELTER," PLUS STUDIO SCENES. MOREOVER, THE STONES THEMSELVES COMMENT ON THEIR CAREERS—THE FIRST TIME THEY'VE DONE SO ON CAMERA. THE RESULT IS AN ASTONISHING AND RIP-ROARING PORTRAIT OF WHAT IS ARGUABLY THE GREATEST BAND IN THE HISTORY OF ROCK. AS FOR THE FACT THAT MICK JAGGER WILL TURN 50, AND THE FACT THAT THE STONES HAVE PLAYED TOGETHER FOR 30 YEARS, JAGGER SHRUGGED THAT LANDMARK OFF IN A RECENT INTERVIEW WITH KURT LODER FOR "ESQUIRE" MAGAZINE. STILL, THE TIMES THEY ARE A CHANGING WHEN ONE OF THE ORIGINAL BAD BOYS OF ROCK 'N' ROLL IS NOW OLDER THAN THE CURRENT PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

The pride and joy of the
Blackfoot tribe...

BRAVE AND FREE

by

A porcelain collector doll designed by one of America's foremost Western artists.

Gregory Perillo's spectacular paintings of Native Americans grace the walls of many prestigious museums and private homes. One of his most famous paintings is "Brave and Free," which portrays a proud youth of the Blackfoot tribe. Now, Perillo brings this young Blackfoot to life in a captivating new collector doll—Brave and Free.

Superbly sculpted...enchantingly lifelike.

Expertly sculpted, Brave and Free is remarkably lifelike. Just look at the gently rounded cheeks and artfully sculpted mouth...and those big brown eyes framed by tiny, hand-applied eyelashes. The doll's head, arms and legs are handcrafted of fine bisque porcelain and the lifelike facial features are skillfully painted by hand. As your assurance of authenticity, Perillo's signature will appear on the back of your doll. You will receive a serially-numbered Certificate of Ownership with your doll.

Brave and Free's hand-tailored, two-piece outfit is fashioned of fringed faux buckskin. Decorative symbols accent the doll's shirt, collar and headband...and a striking "Thunderbird" motif made of hand-sewn beads promises good fortune.

Attractively priced; satisfaction guaranteed.

Created by Art affects, Ltd. for the Danbury Mint, Brave and Free is favorably priced at $111, payable in four monthly installments of $27.75. Your satisfaction is guaranteed. To order, simply return the Reservation Application today.

Purrfection

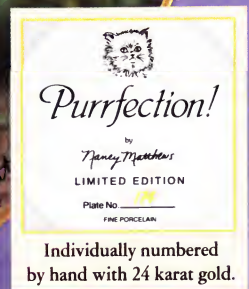

Plate shown smaller than actual size of 8" (20.32 cm) in diameter.

The first-ever collector plate in fine porcelain by the award-winning animal artist Nancy Matthews.

What could be more precious than an adorable Persian kitten? So soft—so irresistible—and ready to capture your heart!

This is the subject of "Purrfection." An endearing portrait of love—and a premiere collector plate by the award-winning animal artist Nancy Matthews, whose works are prized by knowledgeable collectors throughout the world.

In the tradition of the finest collectibles, this heirloom collector plate is crafted of fine porcelain and lavished with colors as breathtaking as nature's own. Each imported collector plate is hand-numbered and bordered in 24 karat gold. And each bears the artist's signature mark on its reverse side.

Priced at just $29.50, this Limited Edition will be closed forever after just 45 firing days. Available exclusively from The Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, PA 19091-0001.

The American Legacy

A LOOK AT THE KEY YEARS OF THE TUMULTUOUS '60s

THE '60s MARKED A WATERSHED IN THE COURSE OF AMERICAN SOCIETY. IN JULY, THE AMERICAN LEGACY PRESENTS TWO SPECIALS THAT LOOK AT THE WAY WE WERE DURING TWO OF THOSE YEARS OF TURMOIL: THIS WAS AMERICA...1963, WHICH PREMIERES JULY 13, AND ITS COMPANION PIECE THIS WAS AMERICA...1968, WHICH PREMIERES JULY 20. THESE WERE KEY YEARS IN THE AMERICAN EXPERIENCE. IN 1963, THE RISE OF THE CIVIL RIGHTS MOVEMENT AND THE TRIUMPH OF THE NUCLEAR TEST BAN TREATY WERE OFFSET BY THE TRAGEDY OF THE KENNEDY ASSASSINATION, WHICH INFLICTED A PSYCHIC WOUND THAT HAUNTS AMERICA TO THIS DAY. IN 1968, AMERICA WAS CONSUMED BY CIVIL UNREST AND DOMESTIC UPHEAVAL AS OPPOSITION TO THE WAR IN VIETNAM INCREASED. AND AS A YOUNG GENERATION QUESTIONED AND PROTESTED NOT ONLY FOREIGN POLICY BUT TRADITIONAL SOCIAL VALUES, THE NATION WAS SEARED AGAIN BY THE SPECTER OF POLITICAL VIOLENCE: THE ASSASSINATIONS OF DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING AND ROBERT KENNEDY; AS WELL THE DEMONSTRATIONS DURING THE DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION. "THE WHOLE WORLD IS WATCHING," DEMONSTRATORS SHOUTED AS THEY CLASHED WITH POLICE IN THE STREETS OF CHICAGO. AND 1968 MARKED THE YEAR RICHARD NIXON ASCENDED TO THE PRESIDENCY. IN JULY, RELIVE THOSE TIMES THAT CHANGED AMERICAN LIVES FOREVER.

Heather

by Internationally Acclaimed Doll Artist

Joke Grobben

"Heather" realizes it's been "one of those days" for Mommy, and now, this sweet little girl wants to make Mommy feel "all better." What could make Mommy smile more than a big beautiful flower, picked just for her!

Created by famed European doll artist Joke (pronounced Yo' - Ke') Grobben, "Heather" marks this talented artist's American porcelain doll premiere. Crafted of fine, bisque porcelain and beautifully hand-painted, she is truly an exquisite work of art.

Wearing a sweetly thoughtful expression, her long golden hair framing her face, "Heather" looks delightfully angelic in her pale pink dress, worn under a white eyelet pinafore trimmed with yards of lace and pink satin ribbons.

"Heather" is available exclusively from The Hamilton Collection for just $69. Our 30 Day 100% Buy-Back Guarantee assures your complete satisfaction.

"Heather" would love to brighten your day too. Submit your reservation for her without delay.

Swiss Formula®

“With St.Ives Swiss Formula my skin has never looked and felt so clean!”

Gerda Frederiksen
Copenhagen, Denmark

“My complexion used to be so dull. Clogged pores, too.
But St.Ives Swiss Formula leaves my skin looking and feeling natural. It’s incredible! And I love the gentleness of the elder flower. I use it every day.”
